“ What are we going to do now? You were always the strong one and the person we could turn to for encouragement. You always took care of all of us kids and made sure we were minding our P's and Q's. Strong to the end and always an independent soul. I can't imagine our lives without you. We have some precious memories of growing up near each other and going to ball games and swimming in your pool. You'd get mad and chase us home and tell us never to come back and we'd be right back down there in a half hour. You not only raised 6 kids of your own, but took in 3 more to raise - and that's not counting all us nieces and nephews running in and out of your home on a daily basis. You're one strong strong lady - how did you survive it all? I'm so happy you didn't have to suffer and you were able to see all your children and grandchildren before bidding us ado. We love you Aunt Grace and we honor and cherish your memory. We march on together with one soldier missing.
